TIRIL LANGT LANGT BORTE

ET EVENTYR BASERT PÅ TH. KITTELSENS MALERIER

FIGENSCHOU FORLAG

FAIRYTALE INSPIRED BY TH. KITTELSEN

A long time ago, there was an artist named Kittelsen. He drew trees, mountains and water as if they were living creatures. Kittelsen didn't imagine everything he drew by himself. He read a poem called Lokkende toner, about a hulder called Tirilil Tove, written by the famous Norwegian writer Welhaven. But Welhaven hadn't made the story up by himself either. He had read a fairytale by the name Tirilil Tove og Tyveborg. The living creatures Kittelsen drew is hanging in museums today, and some of the motifs became the play Langt, langt borte, or Far, Far away in English. That play was later made into a book, and that is the book you are about to read now. It is from today, but also from far, far away.

THE WISHING MACHINE

We find ourselves in a world where you can enter any toy store and buy a best friend in a can. A living doll that will do anything you would want a best friend to do. Wonderful, you might think?

But how is it to be such a doll. In this book, we meet Jester. Together with The Superhero and Dandydoll they have to defeat the cunning Betty Spaghetti. She has adopted these three little dolls to exploit them. They have to knit for her every day and night. Now they have knitted the letters S.O.S. in secret. Will anyone come for them? Will they understand that the dolls are in great danger?

THE DOLL FACTORY

Once upon a time there was a magic doll factory that made very special dolls. The dolls were almost like ordinary children: They could walk, think and speak by themselves. When the dolls were ready, they were put in small cans and sent to toy stores across the country, so that all children could buy themselves a best friend.

One of the dolls is Dolly-Lisa. She dreams of becoming a real girl. This is her story...

- A MODERN PINOCCHIO ADVENTURE
- HIGH CONCEPT
- STRONG CHARACTERS

A new and talented Norwegian writer has in collaboration with one of Norway's best illustrators made a magical book trilogy about living dolls.

Just one year after her debut, Hanne Buch is releasing a new illustrated novel for children. The book, "The Magic Doll Factory", stands on its own feet but follows the characters and universe from the debut novel "Best Friend in a Can". The script for the third novel, "the Doll Home", is already accepted by the publisher and will be published in February 2019.

A BADASS BOOK

Out of the way Captain Underpants and welcome:
THE THREE BROTHERS POO!

A book about the everlasting and highly interesting topic POO. It never goes out of fashion and it always makes you laugh.

This is the story about the three brothers Poo and the World's Mightiest Combover. Meet Billy, Bjartmar and Benny, three brothers who have to stand up for each other when President Donald Promp comes to town and vanity and snobbery takes the power in the politics, the arts and among most people (and poos).

It is no secret. We want this book series to be a competitor to humorous, easy read books like CAPTAIN UNDERPANTS,
THE TREEHOUSE SERIES and DIARY OF A WIMPY KID.

WHEN MUMMY IS SO INFINITELY SAD

Author Daniele Evelin Alves has studied children's mental health for several years. She has had conversations with many children in difficult situations. However, the meeting with an infinite sad ten-year-old in a hooded sweater became a turning point. Alves wanted to give something back. Something that could be helpful. Something that could give hope. The result was this book.

The "Inside Mummy" project consist of three texts: A beautiful picture book and two academic texts. One text is addressed to people working with children, and the other is addressed to parents. There are thus one literary and two academic approaches to the topic of children living with mentally ill parents.

The children's book "Inside Mummy" is about a child growing up with a mother who has severe mood swings. The author and the illustrator wanted to create a recognizable picture of a child living in emotionally complicated relationships. At the same time, experiencing anger, joy and grief in close relationships are something we all do. Therefore the subject is something that concerns us all.

Christmas is coming to Pinchcliffe. Louis and Luca are eagerly busy with the Christmas preparations. Theodore Rimspoke is mostly busy with the new invention he is working on. Then, one snowy morning in December, Luca wakes up with a feeling that something is terribly wrong. It is Theodore, he has disappeared! Only his warm cup of coffee is left on the kitchen counter...

Kjell Aukrust created the Pinchcliffe universe and the characters Louis and Luca. He is one of the most beloved authors and illustrators in Norway. Even if he has passed away, his universe lives on both in Norway and internationally. The little picture book "Louis and Luca's Christmas" became the start of a film trilogy that set audience records in Norwegian movie theaters and was sold to several countries internationally.

CHRISTMAS PREPARATIONS FOR THE YOUNGEST

The Christmas elves are busy doing preparations for the big day. Together with these cute but a bit mischievous creatures you will learn all about Christmas. They will show you the Feast of Saint Lucia and the tradition of Advent. What kind of decoration do we use on the Christmas tree? And what kind of Christmas pastries can we prepare?

The elves' Christmas Encyclopedia is easy to read and easy to understand. No religion, just fun and cosy traditions to share. The perfect preparation for Christmas with your little ones.

RAISING CHILDREN

Find peace in everyday life with your children

In this book, author and educator Inger-Lise Køltzow shares her recipe on how she manages to organize her life with four children so that it becomes pleasant, harmonious and good to live for both big and small.

“The time with children” is easy to read and packed with great practical tips on how to make every day a good day, either with toddlers, young or older children

“Here are knowledge, proven experience and a big heart. Read, learn and get inspired to enjoy the time with children”

Anna Wahlgren

Imagine having your children playing for themselves, making their own packed lunch and helping cleaning the house. It is not impossible. Inger-Lise Køltzow shows you how and shares her own experiences in “The time with children”.

“ To find the peace with my children, I decided to enjoy the time with them. That is not always easy. With children comes challenges. I have tried, and I have failed and tired again. Eventually I found my way. I began to write. Other parents got to read, and try. They said it worked. I became aware that my experiences could help other parents. My thoughts and experiences was put in a system, and after many years of work it became ”The time with children” ”

Køltzow's method:

No matter how big or small your children are, three things must be present in the daily life.

1. SOCIAL TIME: Adults and children must spend time together.

2. WORK: The Children must be included in the everyday tasks.

3. ALONE TIME: Both children and adults need time for themselves.
